

The aim of Fluxus Courtyard is for the community to implement ideas in collaboration with an artist, making decisions through the CO-CREATION process.

FLUXUS courtyard No. 1: Politechnikos g. Naujasodis, Kaunas District

What kind of courtyard is it?

The courtyard is between a small street and a river (Paths No. 15-18 next to the pumping station). The total area is 20-30 a. The courtyard is exceptional because of its green landscape: a nearby river and a lot of trees. There is a volleyball area in the courtyard, swinging set, one third of the courtyard is overgrown by trees and a space outlined by stones. The courtyard cultivates the natural beauty and the means thereof in the neighbourhood. There is a poor-looking building in the courtyard, pumping station that could be used to immortalise the flood that took place in 2010.

Who are the residents of the courtyard?

The total of 200 people live in Naujasodis constantly and around 300 of them live there in summer. Half of them are active members of the community that use the courtyard.

What is expected from the artist?

The courtyard community is active, consisting of people of various ages (senior citizens, families with children). In its courtyard, the community wants to have means for activities that would include all age groups, contribute to the creation of a closer connection among the community members. The artistic solution should be in harmony with nature in the courtyard and not stand out from the general landscape. It could be “a device” for physical activities but also something unusual and artistic.
